Good afternoon,

The Alberta iGaming Corporation (AiGC) appreciates the opportunity to provide input regarding the review of the Lobbyists Act.

AiGC supports the objectives of the Act and the importance of transparency and accountability in lobbying activities. As a newly established Crown corporation with responsibilities that include engagement with government, industry participants, and other stakeholders, we have identified several areas where additional clarity would improve interpretation and administration of the Act.

Official Capacity versus Private Capacity

- Clarification to assist board members, officers, and employees in understanding when they are acting in their official capacity for a public entity versus a private or external capacity, particularly where individuals hold multiple roles.

Operator and Stakeholder Communications

- Clarification on whether a Crown corporation communicating and sharing operator or stakeholder perspectives could be considered lobbying on behalf of a client or third party.

Consultation, Stakeholder Engagement, and Lobbying

- Practical guidance and examples distinguishing consultation, routine stakeholder engagement, operational discussions, and lobbying activities would promote consistent interpretation and compliance.

AiGC appreciates the Committee's consideration of these comments.

Thanks,

Amanda Nolet
Vice President, Corporate Strategy and Planning
