I think the auto repair industry does a very good job in general and I don't think we should do anything to add any extra costs to their business, there is always a few bad ones but word of mouth should inform people of that. Always ask someone who has lived in an area for some time where the best place to take your car for repairs and you should never have any trouble. Don't always look for the cheapest repair shop. The government shouldn't have to get involved in auto repair.
