I would like to mention that when a vehicle is written off y insurance whatever reason it should go straight to junkyard not it should come back on road. The reason being the written of vehicle is bought by auto repairs. They fix the vehicle gets it inspected it comes back on road with status as rebuilt. The number plate for active and rebuilt status is same. The number plate for rebuilt status should be different. From the number plate a person should be able to know if the vehicle status is active or rebuilt. Hope you will look into the matter. If rebuilt vehicles are stopped it will be very good step.
