You cannot regulate warranty on something an individual did not engineer this document reads as if the mechanic/technition engineered it when simply they installed a pre developed part so they cannot garrantee how long it works. How would this help competition between manufacturers if theres no reason to research and make sure you get the best one. How could any electrical diagnostics with computer programing and indepth datalink and module communication be quoted this type of work is becoeing more common everyday. This bill is not feasible it will lead to law suits and it seems to be written by a consumer who has no idea how the buisness actually works.... you are wasting my tax dollars i will remember next election. Current manufacturer warrantys are currently above and beyond what you are proposing.
