From reviewing the cliffnotes online it appears that the bill has been "copy-pasted" from ontario legislation and is largely redundant compared to existing standards in place.
An area of concern is where it addresses estimates. Finding the exact problem with a vehicle, especially with advances in technology, is very difficult as one symptom can be 10 different problems.

I feel this bill should be allowed more times for review to guage the effectiveness/importance.

I am not a lisenced mechanic but rather a long time hobbist.
