I think this committees time would be better spent assessing the cost of vehicle registrations and licensing renewal.

This very week I spent $550 repairing my car brakes, which is exactly what I expected to pay. Then I spent 250 renewing my license and registration of two vehicles.

I paid GST on both of these transactions although only one of them was a service as far as I could tell.

Albertans have choice with regards to automotive repair, but no choice in the price of service fees charged by the government.

I oppose most regulations but these seem very unnecessary.
